How This Notebook Works

One word. Ten squares. That's the whole method.

Each week gives you 25 words — the same 25 words, in the same order, as The 6-Month Korean System. Study the week in the book, then come here and write. Ten times per word: the first is traced for you, the second is faint, the last eight are all yours.

Using this notebook on its own? That works too. Every word carries its romanization and meaning, and the weeks move from surviving your first day to belonging — 600 of the most useful words in Korean, in learning order.

FROM ROK

Say each word out loud as you write it — hand and voice together is how it sticks. The 'from memory' box on the right is your self-test: cover the word, write it once without looking, and only then tick the box. That tick is the goal.
